1 of 2 people found the following review helpful. liarBy Nanmatt corriere describes himself as a hero who survived a shipwreck in Alitak Bay around Kodiak Island. what he doesnt explain is that he was a "greenhorn" engineer responsible for quickly sinking the boat when he hit the opposite switch and unbalanced the hull making the entire 88ft boat capsize quickly. The more experienced fishermen stayed on the boat to radio the coast guard(ironically, saving Matts life) because of their collective bravery and experience they were unable to evacuate the boat in time like Matt was.title of the book should be changed from "Jobs that can Kill you" to "Jobs where you can kill others, starring Matt Corriere"disgusting to profit on the deaths of real heroes.

Jobs That Could Kill You is a fascinating collection of candid and intimate conversations with forty-two men and women who describe in gripping detail how physical risk is a familiar companion in their working lives, and how they deal with it. In the oral history tradition of Studs Terkel, Jobs That Could Kill You will introduce you to:- Antron Brown as he launches his top fuel drag racer from zero to over 300 miles an hour in less than four seconds.- Justin McBride talking about the guts it takes to stay atop a raging 1,600-pound bull.- Jeff Gammons as he painfully remembers the terrifying screams of Hurricane Katrina drowning victims.- Cameron Begbie as he recalls fighting hand-to-hand against insurgents in Fallujah, Iraq.- Crab fisherman Matt Corriere, who describes the harrowing night when he was the sole survivor after the sinking of the fishing vessel Massacre Bay in icy Alaskan waters.- And dozens more!Jobs That Could Kill You reveals who these daring people are, what they will endure for a paycheck, and how they feel about their jobs. They speak for themselves, in their own words.
