

(Free and download) Kickstart: How Successful Canadians Got Started

Kickstart: How Successful Canadians Got Started

Alexander Herman, Paul Matthews, Andrew Feindel
ePub | *DOC | audiobook | ebooks | Download PDF

#418555 in eBooks 2008-02-25 2013-05-28 File Name: B00DDU7UR0 | File size: 40.Mb

Alexander Herman, Paul Matthews, Andrew Feindel : Kickstart: How Successful Canadians Got Started before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Kickstart: How Successful Canadians Got Started:

Kickstart reveals how more than 50 successful Canadian started their careers. Their collective wisdom just might help you "kickstart" something of your own.

The intent for the book was to feel like a casual conversation and it doesn't disappoint. The book has a natural dialogue feel which extends nicely into the authors' plan to invite others to submit stories, interviews and especially get young people talker ... This is a great book, and simply put, written by some great guys. (Gloria Nickerson) In Kickstart, Herman, Matthews and Feindel ... have produced an interesting biographical work that has the potential to encourage and inspire anyone who reads it. (Val Ken Lem CM Magazine) The style is casual, well written and interesting. The text is filled with quotation marks imparting almost a personal feeling between reader and subject. Sure to pique readers's interest. Very well done. It is quite remarkable that three self-described nobodies took it upon themselves to harangue and cajole some of the most powerful people in this country - politicians, star athletes, captains of industry - into giving them not only their time but a revealing look at their lives. (Grant Surrige)... a great and unexpected look across the country at the different paths people take to different kinds of success. The book is kind of comforting to those who aren't entirely sure of how to proceed or even of how they have already proceeded along their road through life. This book would be a good recommendation to a student looking for their path or unsure of their own potential to succeed. It does a good job of reinforcing the notion that there is not always a singular and defined path to success and for different people success can take on very different forms. The fact that the book is specifically about Canadians helps the cast be more relatable and human, which strengthens the effectiveness of the book. (Rajio) From the Inside Flap Kickstart reveals how more than 50 successful Canadian started their careers. Their collective wisdom just might help you "kickstart" something of your own. About the Author Alex Herman got his BA from Trinity College Dublin. In Dublin, he was on the executive committee of Amnesty International and wrote for the Trinity News. He is from Toronto but currently attends McGill Law School. Paul Matthews studied English literature at Oxford University. He has written for Toronto Life, the Globe and Mail, and Maisonneuve magazine. He is currently directing his first film. He lives in Toronto. Andrew Feindel studied at the Richard Ivey School of Business and the Stockholm School of Economics. He is now a financial planner for Investors Group. He lives in Toronto.