By T SANTOSO This book has been on my shelves for 2 months before I read it. I know this is an important work, but I initially think it will only be suitable to large corporations. After reading it I realize that this can ultimately be applied to small/med size companies. Companies with revenue of less than 500K USD/year revenue can reap similar benefits compared to the Fortune 500 companies by implementing it. The samples shown in the book make it easier for the reader to copy and adapt for their own organization. Most samples are derived from the big-companies (typical Harvard business book ;-)), but we can adapt it to our (small company) needs. Focus on chapter 3, about STRATEGY MAP. This is most important. And the GENERIC STRATEGY MAP can be applied to most organizations with minimum adjustments. COPY and ADAPT. We can not afford to hire the expensive consultants, so we have to be our own consultant. And this book is a good guide. Most small companies do not even have VISION, MISSION etc statements. But the balance scorecard helps us focus on strategy, objectives, measures, target and INITIATIVES that are measurable, in a more descriptive way. This is in a sense a HOW-TO book about strategy, and about measurements. I've decided to use the system for our company sam-design.com which now has 58 people, and sell the intangibles (designs). We won Andersen Consulting (Accenture now) award of ENTERPRISE-50 (awards for most promising small and medium size companies in Indonesia) last November. We think that the strategy described in the book will boost our company's growth despite the slowdown of the internet. I started to read the book with much skepticism but ended up recommending it to many friends, write a review about it for local magazine and promoting the idea of strategy based on balance scorecard. (I did read the original balance scorecard book which was published in 96, interested in the idea for a while but did not implement any of it). So for the small companies out there, go and get the book, this is not only for the big-boys....

The creators of the revolutionary performance management tool called the Balanced Scorecard introduce a new approach that makes strategy a continuous process owned not just by top management, but by everyone. In The Strategy-Focused Organization, Robert Kaplan and David Norton share the results of ten years of learning and research into more than 200 companies that have implemented the Balanced Scorecard. Drawing from more than twenty in-depth case studies--including Mobil, CIGNA, and ATT Canada--Kaplan and Norton illustrate how Balanced Scorecard adopters have taken their groundbreaking tool to the next level. These organizations have used the scorecard to create an entirely new performance management framework that puts strategy at the center of key management processes and systems. Kaplan and Norton articulate the five key principles required for building strategy-focused organizations: 1) translate the strategy into operational terms, 2) align the organization to the strategy, 3) make strategy everyone's everyday job, 4) make strategy a continual process, and 5) mobilize change through strong, effective leadership. The authors provide a detailed account of how a range of organizations in the private, public, and nonprofit sectors have deployed these principles to achieve breakthrough, sustainable performance improvements.
