Great for anyone who is job hunting- not just college graduates. By Linda This book was a great find. I bought it for my son, who has been unemployed for most of the past 2 years and didn't go to college. The book gave him an extra boost of motivation and a more positive attitude about job hunting. It had great information that was up to date and was very easy to read and understand. Every one I have shown the book to, wants to get a copy for their college age children.

"While there are a handful of books out there offering advice to those who have graduated into the Great Recession, so far this one is my favorite. The author was very thorough in presenting a number of different opportunities beyond simply 'getting a job.' In other words, she makes it very easy to take action." --20 Something Budget About the Author Bonnie Kerrigan Snyder, D.Ed., GCDF is a college and career counselor who specializes in helping young people get started in their careers.
